

Readings

The course presupposes a good knowledge of A. Smith's and D. Ricardo's chapters on wages.

Garegnani P., Professor Samuelson on Sraffa and the Classical Economists, European Journal of the History of Economic Thought, June 2007, pp 181-195 and 212-226

Levrero S., Some notes on wages and competition in the labour market in R. Ciccone, C. Gerke, G. Mongiovi (eds) Sraffa and Modern Economics, Routledge, 2011, vol II.

Stirati A., "Unemployment, Institutions and the Living Standard in the Classical Theory of Wages", Contributions to Political Economy, 11, 1992

Stirati A. Interpretations of Ricardo and the Classics: the Theory of Wages in R. Ciccone, C. Gerke, G. Mongiovi (eds) Sraffa and Modern Economics, Routledge, 2011, vol II; also available on line as WP no 16, Dipartimento di Economia, Università Roma Tre (dipeco.uniroma3.it/public/pdf/WP116.pdf)

Further (optional) Readings

Arrow K.J., Ricardo's work as viewed by later economists, Journal of the History of Economic Thought, vol 13, 1991.

Samuelson P., The Canonical Classical Model of Political Economy. Journal of Economic Literature, 18, 1978

Stirati A., The Theory of Wages in Classical Economics. A Study of Adam Smith, David Ricardo, and their Contemporaries, Elgar, Aldershot, UK, 1994

Stirati A., Ricardo and the Wages Fund, in G. Mongiovi e F. Petri (eds), Value, Distribution and Capital: Essays in Honour of Pierangelo Garegnani, Routledge, 1999

